PITTSBURGH, Nov. 12.—Improvement in the steel strike situation was noted here to-day in an announcement by the Carnegie Steel Company that plants at Sharon and Farrell, Pa., were operating on full time with full forces again. It was said also the Cambria Steel Company, at Johnstown, will reopen its plants Monday, but at strike headquarters leaders said the mills would not be able to start at that time. Work in one of Cambria mills was begun last week and in another this week. Several plants of the same company still remain closed, however.
